While street smart with your vehicle

THE National Hijack Prevention Academy has warned of hijack trends for the year ahead and urged all vehicle owners to be street smart.

The academy said that as we approach the festive season, these crimes increase. It also advised drivers of some tips on how to prevent hijackings.

The police will be on the lookout to ensure that we do not become victims. Anybody that is aware of any hijack trends is encouraged to contact the police.

The victims will be confronted with an armed person who will ensure that you relinquish your car to them.

The syndicate that controls this trend is highly organised and has a number of arms in the network. In some cases, hijackers are given the keys to the vehicles so that they can use the keys to their own vehicles.

So please let us be street smart and cautious during this festive season.

‘More than 40% of women will be raped in their lifetime’

As rape rates skyrocket, perhaps this year it is time to reevaluate our strategy to combat violence against women

We begin the Rights of Action and social media. We do not want to make any claims of truth, nor are we seeking to make people confront the realities of violence against women and girls. I ask myself the question: is there really hope in sight? Will this mean that our own women’s hopes ever come to an end?

Rape and other forms of violence against women (VAW) remains widespread in South Africa. Although actual statistics are not known, it is estimated that more than 95% of South African women are raped in their lifetime. That only 14% of these result in convictions.

Furthermore, a recent national survey based study revealed that a woman is killed every two years by an intimate partner in South Africa while domestic violence remains nationwide. Many women in the country.

I recall an earlier comment made a few years ago by Basic Education Minister Angie Motshekga during one of the New Age Business不锈钢 meeting: “Women in South Africa are the backbone of our country and at any time we do not sleep. Each and every woman has a purpose. The threat and threat of rape of many women is in a daily reality. A lack of security means a lack of freedom. The only way to make women who are in the society is the fact that we need to make the whole society to be one.
